RATIONALE

Creating awareness of business opportunities, supporting potential entrepreneurs and assisting them in sustaining their enterprises is a major concern of agencies involved in accelerating economic development through entrepreneurship. Training these potential entrepreneurs is a crucial intervention in the whole process, a fact that, fortunately, is recognized by most of the agencies concerned with enterprise promotion. However, an analysis of the variety of training programmes for entrepreneurs all over the world revealed that the package of training interventions often lack certain important elements, thus reducing the impact of training on the potential entrepreneurs resulting in high dropout and or low rate of success in entrepreneurship development programme. While the need for training is ever increasing, the paucity for effective trainers in entrepreneurship development is widely evident in many of the developing countries. The proposed programme enables the staff of the training division to develop a total perspective of the complex process of developing the entrepreneurial abilities, managing capabilities and technical competence of potential entrepreneurs. In addition it also helps them to understand the typical demands of his / her role as a trainer and develop skills in curriculum planning and using an appropriate mix of training methods.
